ANTI-SALOON MEN OPEN FIGHT HERE

Speakers Discuss Liquor Question in Local Pulpits—Detroit Man Speaks.

Collections made in various churches of the city Sunday to aid the Anti-Saloon league in carrying on the work for state-wide prohibition amounted to more than the collections made at the last field day two years ago. At the first Baptist church in the morning the collection was $160, and at two other churches the collections were considerably larger. At one meeting the loose collection amounted to as much as the subscriptions at the same church two years ago. The total collection at all the churches amounted to considerably more than $1,000.

Meetings were held both morning and evening by Anti-Saloon league workers. The purpose in holding the meetings was to center attention on the work of making Indiana "dry" in 1917, and also to arouse interest in the state convention of the Anti-Saloon league to be held in Indianapolis on Nov. 16-17. It is probable, as a result of the Sunday meetings, that several churches, both in South Bend and Mishawaka, will send delegates to that convention. The work of the convention will be to start a non-partisan movement for the nomination of "dry" candidates for the legislature.

Detroit Speaker Confident.

The principal speaker Sunday was J. S. Crandall, a lawyer, of Detroit, Mich. In the afternoon Mr. Crandall addressed a mass meeting in the First Methodist church, and in the evening he spoke at St. Paul's Methodist church. At these meetings he declared himself confident that Indiana would go "dry" in 1917. In his evening address he said that he felt sure that Michigan would go "dry" in 1916 because the election law had been so changed that the opposition could not steal the election, as had been done last time. He also said that he felt confident that Ohio would go "dry" next Tuesday, and that in the near future Illinois would follow suit, thus placing the "four best states in the union" in the "dry" column.

In his evening address Mr. Crandall paid little attention to detailing the damage wrought to the home by liquor. The facts in that connection, he said, were once the pith of the temperance arguments, but now the question should be considered in its broad aspect. The question, he said, to him, he said, it should appeal to every honest business man, for he had looked at it from every angle and had found it not a good-looking institution.

The speaker presented his subject briefly and in substance as follows:

Calamity National in Scope.

"It is terrible to note when one man goes wrong and permits liquor to destroy his home life, but it is much more terrible to note that 10,000,000 men are doing likewise and are unfitting themselves for the important work of life. When the evil is so extensive it becomes a national calamity more than a personal one.

"The saloon has never done one good thing, but it has made 80 per cent of the paupers of the country, 75 per cent of the insane, and 80 per cent of the criminals. These unfortunate are the direct result and the finished product of the saloon; they are people who, if it had not been for the saloon, might have been clean, honest, reputable citizens.

"Considering the subject in the light of the Bible, which says, 'No drunkard shall enter the kingdom of heaven,' the calamity of the saloon becomes a civilized world calamity. The great problem of meeting the issue comes back to each one of us. If every church member would rise up and honestly determine to do his duty at the polls, the next election would sound the death knell of the institution that is doing so much harm.

Handicaps Positively.

"The use of liquor does harm not only to the one who uses it but to the unborn generations, for when any man or woman becomes addicted to the use of liquor their blood becomes tainted and they lose the power to reproduce their kind clean. It is one of the greatest crimes of the age that posterity should thus be handicapped in doing the work which lies before it.

"In all the attempts of the saloon men to justify the presence of the saloon they have never yet been able to show one good thing that the saloon has done. They say that prohibition does not prohibit, but that statement is not worthy of argument. They say that the saloon should stay because it affords work for a certain number of workmen, but how false an argument that is when the work of these men means the degradation of so many others.

"Now is the time for every honest man to make a new resolve; to put his energy, wealth and ability into the work. When this is done the work of the saloon men will be done. If more is not willing to work thus for the aid of his brother, then he is not properly recognizing God as his Father."

Sees Great Opportunity.

"The Anti-Saloon league has the greatest opportunity at present to make Indiana a 'saloonless' state that it ever had," was the statement made by E. S. Shumaker, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, Sunday evening in his address at the Westminster Presbyterian church on the saloon question.

Temperance workers are planning the greatest meeting ever held by the Anti-Saloon league in the state on Nov. 16 at Indianapolis, when plans will be made to make the primaries in March 1917 with temperance men, and every effort will be made by the league to nominate and elect a temperate governor and legislature for the coming year.

The work of the league since its organization was told by Shumaker, in which he said that at the time the league started, nearly 20 years ago, only four states of the union were "dry," while today 19 states are "dry," and nearly all the others are working on prohibition. Ohio will vote on the exclusion of saloons Tuesday and a number of others will vote during the coming month.

An outline of the work to be done by the league during the year was given by Supt. Shumaker.

Rev. C. J. Everson, field secretary of the Anti-Saloon league, spoke at the Trinity Methodist Episcopal church Sunday morning upon the vision of the church and its relation to the liquor question. Rev. Everson declared that the church of today has a vision and that vision is a national and world-wide temperance and complete elimination of the saloon and brewery interests.

During his talk Rev. Everson declared that all signs pointed to a victory for the drys nationally in 1920, while even earlier successes in Indiana were predicted. He asserted that the best weapon that has been placed in the hands of the temperance forces in history is the primary election law.

"Candidates are nominated by the people," he said, "and the people are going to see that the nominees at the next election, both to the legislature and to congress, will be compelled to make plain their stand on the liquor question before they will ever be put upon the ticket."

Rev. Everson urged the church to send at least four delegates to the convention which will be held in Tomlinson hall at Indianapolis on Nov. 16 and 17. The question of temperance will be discussed from every angle at this convention and men from every city and town in the state will be present, while a program of the best speakers obtainable has been arranged.

Why careful mothers use Resinol Soap

There are three excellent reasons why Resinol Soap appeals so strongly to the mother who wishes to protect her baby's delicate skin from the eruptions and irritations which so often make life miserable for little folks:

It gives a free, creamy and unusually cleansing lather, in either hard or soft water.

Its ingredients are pure and utterly wholesome, with no trace of free alkali—that harsh, drying chemical which many soap-makers find too difficult and expensive to remove.

And best of all, it contains the soothing, healing Resinol medication that physicians have prescribed for years, in Resinol Ointment, for skin affections—just enough of it to keep the skin soft and cool, and to make baby's bath an insurance against skin-troubles.

If the skin already is in bad condition, with patches of rash, eczema, or other eruptions, a little Resinol Ointment should at first be used to help the Resinol Soap restore its natural health. Resinol Soap is sold by all druggists and dealers in toilet goods. For trial size cake, write to Dept. H-P, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

Good Will Week—Why It's Needed

Epworth Hospital Treats Many Poor During Year, Says, Superintendent.

It is the purpose of this article to endeavor to explain why Epworth hospital needs financial support aside from the regular income and why hospitals are not self supporting. In the institution a proportion of the patients are treated free of charge, while the remainder are furnished with accommodations for which they pay.

No institution which cares for a considerable percentage of free patients can be self supporting. In other words pay patients should not be expected to pay more than the cost of service rendered them. There is a deficit on all $10 ward patients, about five per cent of the patients who pay, pay only a part of their bill or fail to make any payment on their bill.

The minimum cost per capita is $2. A hospital may be managed at a less cost, large institutions can afford to buy their staple supplies in large quantities, thus securing a very low rate. Some furnish cheap food, others give inferior nursing and indifferent medical service.

The work of the institution this year has been a great help to us, giving us a definite sum for care of free patients, thus helping us do a greater amount of good to a greater number of people.

For the coming year our aim is to give care to a greater number of worthy people, to have a better building for our sick babies and better accommodations for our mothers. Extensive repairs, as a new heating and ventilating system, is much in need, a new elevator is needed, to remove a part of a debt of $20,000. Above all else we hope to give to the public the very best service we are capable of giving.

MARGARET PARKER, Superintendent Epworth Hospital. (By S. H.)
